OCTAGONAL MONASTERY: An octagonal design will characterize this new monastery planned for the Trappist monks at Our Lady of the Assumption Abbey, near Ava, Mo., in the heart of the Ozarks. The single-story building, of contemporary ranch-style design, will have facilities for 75 contemplative monks, along with guest accommodations for 40 retreatants. Abbot Bruno Payant says the octagonal design replaces the usual traditional monastery quadrangle, and will mark a "first" for the Trappists.

St. Elizabeth Hospital

Receiving Bids for New Educational Building

ELIZABETH — St. Elizabeth's Hospital here will receive bids on June 14 for the construction of its new Educational Building and Nurses Residence, Sister Ellen Patricia, administrator, has announced. The project will also include residence facilities for interns.

Sister Ellen Patricia said that the estimated cost of the combination school and residence is $912,000. The Sisters of Charity will provide funds for construction of the educational facilities and the interns' residence, and the dormitory facilities will be financed through a federal loan of $500,000 from the Community Facilities Administration, granted on a 40-year basis.

The new building will be located on Williamson St. and will extend from Pearl St. to the hospital's heating and power plant. Four residences, including the old Williamson mansion, former School of Nursing Residence, have been razed. (See also page 4).

The first unit of the hospital's development program, the heating and power plant, was completed in 1957 at a cost of $678,000. The hospital is presently soliciting funds for the final unit of the program, a new $3.9 million bed wing. A federal grant of $766,722 for construction of the new wing is contingent upon the hospital's providing 63% of the estimated construction costs.

The combination residence and school of nursing will include classrooms, laboratory and lecture facilities, large assembly room and recreational areas; offices for the educational director, her secretary and the instructional staff; a conference room and a reception and waiting area.

Two house mothers' apartments, consisting of bedroom, living room and bath, will be located on each floor. Adjacent to the residence lobby lounge will be parlors where students may entertain their dates. A small kitchen for the preparation of snacks and refreshments will adjoin the main lounge. Plans also include a rumpus room for ping pong and other activities. All students' bedrooms will be planned for double occupancy. Lounge areas on each floor will have adjoining kitchenettes.

The interns' residence will be separated from the remainder of the building and will have its own entrance. It will consist of four units of two bedrooms, living room and bath for unmarried interns, and two one-bedroom apartments for married interns.

Neil J. Convery, Newark, is the architect. Joseph J. Tomasulo is chairman of the building and grounds committee of the hospital's Board of Managers.

Religious Mail Hike Proposal Abandoned

WASHINGTON — The Post Office Department has withdrawn a request for higher postal rates on religious publications.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield withdrew the request in a letter to the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee on the same day that a group of religious editors was to testify in opposition to the increases.

If Congress agrees to the request — and there is every prospect that it will — the mailing rate for these periodicals will not be changed.

THE POST OFFICE Department had proposed that non-profit periodicals in second class mail circulate at a rate 50% of that established for profit-making newspapers and magazines. This would have had varying effects upon individual publications with some estimating that it would increase their mailing costs by 40%.

Rev. Albert J. Nevins, M.M., editor of Maryknoll magazine and president of the National Press Association, halted the department's action. He said it is a "recognition of the importance of the religious press to the national welfare."

Father Nevins was among those who were to have testified before the committee. He said the proposed increase would have cost Maryknoll an additional $178,000 a year.

Other Catholic editors were prepared to show that the new rates would cost a magazine such as America an additional $33,000 annually and newspaper chains such as Our Sunday Visitor an additional $152,000.

Religious organizations will still be subject to other increases in the bill, however, if Congress approves it, including five cents for first class postage, eight cents for air mail, and four cents for postcards.

Reunion for Seminary Class of '35

GARFIELD — Twenty-three priests, all members of the class of 1935, Immaculate Conception Seminary, Darlington, and all ordained that year, will assemble at Our Lady of Mt. Virgin Church here, June 16, for a class reunion and common celebration of their silver jubilee.

Archbishop Boland will be celebrant of a Solemn Pontifical Mass at 10:30 a.m., at which Bishop McNulty of Paterson will preach the sermon.

Following the Mass, there will be a dinner attended by the jubilarians. A distinctive feature of the entire celebration is the fact that the priests of the 1935 class have invited all priests who were students during their time at the seminary to be their guests. This will include the Darlington classes from 1931 to 1939 inclusive.

The class of 1935 is intact with one exception. That is Rev. John P. Washington, one of the famed "four chaplains," who went down when the troopship Dorchester was sunk during World War II.

FOUR BISHOPS will also be present. The Ordinary of Paterson has a two-fold connection. He was a priest in Newark when the class was graduated and now heads a diocese in which six of the 1935 class are serving.

Bishop Ahl of Trenton was a teacher at the seminary during the stay of the 1935 class. He will be principal speaker at the dinner after the Mass.

Also present will be Auxiliary Bishops Stanton and Curtis of Newark. The latter was a fellow student during the time of the 1935 class.

Host for the celebration will be Rev. Charles P. Casserly, pastor, Our Lady of Mt. Virgin.

Pope Organizes Work Leading Up to Council

VATICAN CITY — A central coordinating commission, ten preparatory commissions and two special secretariats are being established to prepare for the Second Vatican Council.

This was made known by Pope John XXIII on Pentecost Sunday (June 5) in a letter drawn up on his personal initiative and signed by him. (Text of letter on page 16.)

THE FORMATION of the commission and the secretariats gives an insight into the matters that will be discussed at the council. One commission will be concerned with theological questions touching Holy Scripture, sacred traditions, the Faith and its practices.

Another will deal with diocesan government, a third with discipline for the clergy and faithful, a fourth with the Sacraments, a fifth with the missions.

Other commissions will be concerned with the liturgy, religious, seminary studies and education, the lay apostolate, and the Eastern churches.

Of the special secretariats, one will deal with Christian unity and the other with press, radio and television.

LATER, the Holy Father announced that Cardinal Bea, S.J., would direct the activities of the secretariat on Christian unity. He also named the Cardinals who would head the 10 preparatory commissions but did not name a president for the secretariat dealing with press, radio and television.

Cardinal Ottaviani, secretary of the Sacred Congregation of the Holy Office, was named president of the theology commission. Cardinal Mimmi, secretary of the Sacred Consistorial Congregation, will direct the work of the commission on diocesan government. Named president of the commission for discipline of the clergy and faithful was Cardinal Ciriaci, prefect of the Sacred Congregation of the Council.

Cardinal Valeri, prefect of the Sacred Congregation of Religious, will lead the commission on Religious. That on sacramental discipline will be under the direction of Cardinal Aloisi Masella, prefect of the congregation dealing with the Sacraments.

Cardinal Gaetano Cicognani, Prefect of the Sacred Congregation of Rites, will direct the work of the liturgy commission. The commission on education and seminaries will be headed by Cardinal Pizzardo, prefect of the Sacred Congregation of Seminaries and Universities.

Cardinal Amleto Cicognani, former Apostolic Delegate to the U.S., will serve as president of the commission for Eastern churches. He is secretary of the Sacred Congregation for the Oriental Church. Named president of the commission on missions was Cardinal Agagianian, prefect of the Sacred Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith. Cardinal Cento will lead the commission for the lay apostolate.

POPE JOHN provided that all the work would be supervised by the coordinating group, over which he himself or a legate named by him will preside. He also revealed his intention to name the Cardinals who will head the subsidiary commissions and that these Cardinals, along with other Cardinals and Bishops of his choosing, will sit on the coordinating commission.

Each of the preparatory commissions will have a secretary, members "chosen from the ranks of the Bishops and distinguished ecclesiastics," and consultants.

The Motu Proprio, as this type of letter is known, also provides that other commissions may be established by the Pope at his pleasure when the need arises and allows the 10 established commissions to create their own sub-commissions. The central commission will draft procedural rules for the conduct of the council.

POPE JOHN'S establishment of a commission for Eastern churches and a secretariat for Christian unity left no doubt that reunion would be a dominant theme of the council.

In the very first paragraph of the Motu Proprio, the Pope noted that "there is quickened once more the hope that those who, though claiming the name of Christian, are yet separated from this Apostolic See, may listen to the voice of the Divine Shepherd and approach the one Church of Christ."

He recalled that in his first encyclical he had said that one of the primary objectives of the council would be to provide a "gentle invitation" to reunion.

Announcing the formation of a secretariat on Christian unity, he said it would serve "as a token toward other Christians. Moreover, he said, it would enable them to follow the work of the council and to find more easily the path by which they may arrive at unity."

Requiem Mass for Archbishop Walsh

Archbishop Boland will celebrate a Solemn Pontifical Requiem Mass for the late Archbishop Thomas J. Walsh at 10:30 a.m., June 13, in Sacred Heart Cathedral.

This month marks the eighth anniversary of the death of Archbishop Walsh. Catholics are asked to remember him in their prayers, especially at this time.

Dominican Republic Official Would Oust Vatican Diplomat

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (NC) — A Cabinet minister has called for the expulsion of the Apostolic Nuncio to the Dominican Republic, charging that he is responsible for "obviously seditious" pastoral letters issued by the Bishops of this country.

The accusation, made by Mario Abreu Penzo, Minister of Justice and Worship, has widened the gap between the country's six Bishops and Gen. Rafael Trujillo's regime.

The regime radio quoted Abreu as saying that the Apostolic Nuncio, Archbishop Lino Zanini, is "an international provocateur."

THE ATTACK was apparently a further reaction to the joint pastoral letter issued by the Bishops last January in the wake of a wave of arrests. In the pastoral, the Bishops condemned the violation of human rights.

In a second pastoral in March, the Bishops repeated an appeal for pardons for political prisoners.

Abreu Penzo's charges were made in a letter to President Hector B. Trujillo. The text of the letter was broadcast over the government radio.

The letter also charged the Vatican with a "new materialistic orientation... which tends to permit the clergy to devote itself to political activities."

The letter revealed that Gen. Rafael Trujillo, long-time ruler of the country and brother of the President, did not permit the Minister of Justice "to try" those who signed the pastorals.

It also said that the clergy demonstrated "unprecedented ingratitude" by the pastorals, whose "only aim" was "to raise the revolutionary banner" against public peace and the security of the nation.

The Minister of Justice then referred to the May 17 pastoral of Archbishop Enrique Perez Serantes of Santiago, Cuba, in which the Archbishop warned that communism has become entrenched there.

Abreu Penzo said that while the Cuban pastoral was limited to "defending God from the common enemy, communism," the Dominican pastorals "were aimed exclusively against the government, which is the most anti-communist institution in America." The result, the letter said, "was to foment communism and anarchy in the country."

The minister's letter concluded: "I have been able to prove that the pastorals... were the work of Msgr. Lino Zanini... Since those writings created and facilitated the anarchist movement in our republic... I consider that the supreme interest of protecting families, peace, and the security of the state requires that Msgr. Zanini be declared persona non grata by the proper authority because he has become, not an ambassador of brotherhood, but rather an international provocateur."

New Obscenity Trends Cited; Publishers Seek 'Freedom'

NEWARK — The Legion of Decency of the Newark Archdiocese has issued a statement calling attention to "two recent dangerous trends in the field of objectionable printed matter."

Even while the statement was being issued, four New York publishers, claiming constitutional rights to free speech, filed suit to gain an injunction against decent literature activities aimed at their publications.

MEANWHILE, Essex County Prosecutor Brendan T. Byrne revealed that the bulk of the pending court cases involving alleged violation of state anti-obscenity laws have been scheduled for trial starting June 13.

Originally the cases were to go before the jury in April and May but lawyers for the 14 defendants gained postponements. Additional postponements are still possible, although some cases stem from arrests made in 1958.

The law under which they will be tried has been upheld in County Court in a ruling on an appeal after Prosecutor Byrne had secured a conviction in the first case brought to trial.

IN ITS STATEMENT, the Newark Legion of Decency said it "wishes to call the attention of the public to these two problems: the trend of presenting sacrilegious and blasphemous material interwoven with sex; the danger to youth of certain publishers capitalizing on hobbies and legitimate interests in order to introduce vice printed matter into unsuspecting households."

tions, Inc., all giving the address of 505 Eighth Ave., and Flying Eagle Publications, Inc., of 545 Fifth Ave.

Defendants in the suit, filed in the chancery division of Superior Court, are Essex County Sheriff Neil G. Duffy and Irvington Public Safety Director Elmer J. Hausmann, an official of the Irvington Citizens for Decency Literature.

The suit claims that raids ordered by Duffy on bookstores and newsdealers, that letters sent out over Hausmann's signature by the Irvington group, and that the activities of some decency organizations have cut sales of magazines published by the plaintiffs, disrupted distribution and violated their rights of free speech.

The complaining firms are a part of the "West Park Group," composed of 10 publishing companies doing an annual business of $17 million — $1.5 million of it in New Jersey.

A number of the 10,000 magazines seized by sheriff's detectives in a series of raids inaugurated last Fall are published by the plaintiffs. Some of these magazines will be presented as evidence when the obscenity cases come to trial.

A LIST of the magazines published by the complaining firms was not immediately available. But Father Hayes of the decency office was able to provide copies of magazines published by three of the concerns and a copy of a magazine published by the fourth was supplied by Detective Arthur Magnusson of the sheriff's office.

One was the March, 1960, issue of The Lowdown published by Wilmot Enterprises. Another was the February, 1960, issue of The Gent published by Excellent Publications. The third was the November, 1959, edition of The Dude published by Mystery Publishing Co. The fourth was the June, 1960, issue of Nugget published by Flying Eagle Publications.

Lowdown, Dude and Gent all listed their address as 48 W. 48th St., New York. Phone numbers for Gent and Dude — both glossy, slick-cover magazines, as is Nugget — were identical. More, the editor, managing editor, production manager, advertising director, business manager, art director and art assistant were the same for both publications.

THE FORMAT of both publications was also identical. They were liberally sprinkled with sexy cartoons and black-and-white and color photographs of nude and semi-nude girls in enticing poses.

According to Detective Magnusson, the content of Nugget is similar.

In addition, he said, the stories contained in magazines of this type are often concerned with the details of seduction.

Lowdown is a picture-text magazine with most of the articles being spiced with sexy photographs. Included were articles titled "Perverts on the Prowl," "How Women Invite Rape," "Sexy Rexy's Sexy Son" and "The Lowdown on Nude Models."

Among the items which could be bought through the advertisements were texts on sex, guns, "Honey-moon Love Drops," and "Invigorator" pills for men and women.

THE FOUR publishing companies, in their Superior Court suit, object to the fact that last April letters mailed by the Irvington decency literature group and signed by Hausmann included a list of "objectionable" publications.

Turning to Duffy's activities, the companies claimed his actions were "invalid, illegal and beyond the scope of his official duties and rights."

In addition to their request for a preliminary injunction, they seek a court order that all notices and letters of instruction issued by the defendants on obscenity are void and of no effect. They also ask a ruling that decency groups have no right to prevent magazine sales.

THIS SUIT IS in addition to an $800,000 libel suit filed against Hausmann and seven other members of the Irvington committee by the weekly tabloid paper, New York Enquirer, as a result of the same letter. The Enquirer claims the committee has, in effect, branded its publication as obscene.

Commissioner Hausmann, however, denies this allegation. The letter, he said, was merely for the guidance of committee members. No publication was called obscene or pornographic. The strongest term used in the letter was that the listed magazines were "apparently objectionable."

Further, he said, the committee, a non-sectarian group, is only attempting to educate newsdealers to the content of some magazines and their possible effect on young people. Although newsdealers are being asked to remove from their stands magazines which the committee feels are objectionable, they are under no compulsion to do so, he said.

However, his office has prepared an anti-obscenity measure in line with recent Supreme Court decisions and this ordinance will be presented at a council meeting on June 14.

DETECTIVE Magnusson reasoned that the success of recent drives against obscenity in New Jersey has hurt New York publishers. Through the cooperation of newsdealers, he said, thousands of objectionable publications are being returned to distributors.

Often, he said, court tests are brought as delaying actions at the end of which publishers change titles and formats and start the process all over again.

Auxiliary Bishop Curtis will preside and Msgr. Edward Scully, pastor, Immaculate Heart of Mary, will preach. Msgr. Scully preached at Father Bell's first Solemn Mass at St. Rose of Lima Church, Newark, 25 years ago.

Scholarships Given 2,252

TRENTON — Students who qualified for the 2,252 state scholarships awarded for college study will receive their initial payment this Fall, the New Jersey State Scholarship Commission announced here in naming the winners.

The payment, the commission said, will be made when the scholarship winners present proof that they have been enrolled as full-time students in colleges.

The $400 awards will be renewable each year for four years as long as the students remain in full-time college attendance and maintain satisfactory academic progress.

THE AWARD program was authorized by law last year but a court test delayed full implementation for 1959 graduates. Up to 5% of the state's public and private high school graduates may be given awards to study at the college of their choice under the law.

Awards are based on financial need and academic ability as demonstrated in tests given earlier. Up to 15% of the awards may be used out of the state and under that provision 431 of the scholarship winners will study at non-Jersey colleges.

A total of 6,512 students applied for scholarships but only 3,748 completed the application process.

Population Rank Given

NEWARK—All four New Jersey dioceses are among the dioceses which have Catholic populations in excess of 30% of the total population.

PATERSON is 18th with a Catholic population of 40.5%, Trenton is 22nd with 38.8% of the people being Catholic and Camden is 35th with a 33.3 percentage.

The most Catholic state is Rhode Island where the Providence See, which takes in the entire state, has a Catholic population of 61.6%. Next is Massachusetts, where the Fall River, Springfield, Boston and Worcester Sees rank from fifth through eighth in the individual standings with Catholic populations ranging from 56.1% to 52.1%.

Sister Carmelita's Keepsake

ELIZABETH — A passerby may have done a double take as he saw the Sister and the middle-aged woman each peeling a shutter off the side of the aged three-story house. But as women view these things there was a perfectly good reason for what they did.

Sister Carmelita is director of the St. Elizabeth Hospital School of Nursing. Her companion in the shingle incident is Mrs. Josephine Tronalone, who is a grandmother. But once upon a time they were Mary Morvin and Josephine Talbot, respectively, and they were girlhood pals and roommates in this very house. The house will be remembered by many as the 172-year-old Williamson mansion which housed the family of Gen. Matthias Williamson, Revolutionary War officer, and high sheriff of Essex County, whose body rests in the vault beneath St. John's Episcopal Church.

BUT IN 1911 the house became home to the seven-year-old school of nursing of St. Elizabeth's Hospital. And that meant it became home to Mary Morvin and Josephine Talbot, members of the Class of 1915, the first to be graduated from "Pearl St. Home," as the Williamson mansion came to be called.

The student nurses were delighted with Pearl St. Home. Such a marvelous change from the top floor of the hospital where they had been quartered in one room all together. They were proud to show visitors through the "new" facilities at the open house.

Mary drew the honor of escorting Mother Mary Xavier Mehegan, foundress of the Sisters of Charity, who inquired of the young student: "When are you coming to Convent?"

WELL, IT WAS only a few years later that Mary did "come to Convent" — that is, she joined the Sisters of Charity of St. Elizabeth and became Sister Carmelita.

And then it happened that many years later she came back to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, and was appointed director of the very school at which she studied for her R.N.

There was a new generation of student nurses in Pearl St. Home and quarters were once again cramped. Sister Carmelita was glad to be able to promise them that they'd have a new building one day.

Finally, three years ago, the school closed its doors to resident students because of lack of space to accommodate them. Classes were held in the former polio unit (no longer needed since the success of the Salk vaccine) and Pearl St. Home was downgraded to a storehouse.

THEN IT HAPPENED: the go-ahead for the building of hospital education building and nurses residence was given. And Pearl St. Home was one of four buildings earmarked for demolition to make room.

Sister Carmelita, who had been waiting and hoping for a new nurses residence, took a look at Pearl St. Home, and a thousand old memories and nostalgias crowded upon her. When Mrs. Tronalone came to visit her one day, they made their little pilgrimage and tenderly removed two shingles from the outside of their old room.

"I GUESS," she said, "I'm just a traditionalist — and that's nothing to brag about. But watching them tear it down was a bit of tear-jerker for a while."

Now Pearl St. Home is no more — there is just a level lot where it stood for 172 years. And now the plans for the marvelous new building can go ahead, and of course Sister Carmelita is very happy about it all.

And besides, she has a fine souvenir.

Assails Shooting In Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Auxiliary Bishop Carlos Borge y Castriello of Managua has condemned Nicaraguan troops for killing three students who were reported attempting to escape after being arrested for alleged political crimes.

The Bishop also told newsmen that he is skeptical of the announced investigation of the incident by the military. Said the Bishop: "The military do not condemn the military."

The Bishop said it is not a grave crime to try to escape. He added that it is not necessary to kill an escaping prisoner if it is possible to recapture him.

Other officers elected were John M. Leahy, Trenton, 1st vice commander; H. Roger Gil'ert, Secaucus, 2nd vice commander; Aldo DiChiara, Newark, 3rd vice commander; Vincent Prestigiacomo, Perth Amboy, treasurer; John W. Keogh, Atlantic City, LAST LOOK: The historic old Williamson mansion which served since 1911 as the nurses residence at St. Elizabeth's Hospital is shown as it was dismantled recently to make way for the new educational and residence building.

Oratory Academic Building Dedicated

SUMMIT — The new academic building of Oratory School here was dedicated by Auxiliary Bishop Stanton on June 7, with graduation exercises for 61 seniors following the dedication ceremony.

The contemporary styled building, designed by Eggers and Higgins, architects of New York City, contains facilities for a library, science room, laboratories, administrative offices, conference and guidance rooms, a cafeteria seating 150, and a gymnasium.

The gymnasium, located to the rear of the structure, has a raised activities area which can be converted into a spectator area overlooking the gym floor. Under the raised area are the locker rooms, showers and other facilities for both home and visiting teams.

The exterior walls of the modern building consist of a glass and wood curtain wall on the academic wing.

The walls of the gymnasium wing are faced with brick and have large aluminum framed translucent plastic windows.

The 10-classroom building will accommodate boys from the 7th to 12 grades.

THE CARDINAL virtues are prudence, justice, temperance and fortitude.

Court Refuses School Case

WASHINGTON (NC) — The U. S. Supreme Court declined to rule in a case involving the question of whether a state denies religious freedom by insisting a child attend a qualified school, contrary to the child's religious beliefs.

The case involved Alta Lee Wold, 14, who stopped attending public school in March, 1955, in King County, Wash., after her family joined the Seventh Elect Church in Spiritual Israel, which exists only in King County.

Since then Washington state authorities sought to compel her parents to send the girl to a qualified school. In 1955 Mrs. Wold began teaching her daughter at home, but the Washington State Supreme Court held this did not conform to the state educational requirements.

The Wolds said their faith forbids eating meat or hot spices, cutting their hair, playing or listening to musical instruments, dancing and remaining in the presence of a person who eats forbidden food.

The Wolds complained their daughters were subjected to coercion by persons at the school who sought to have the girls take part in school activities.

For Limited Period

Suggests College Graduates Teach in Parochial Schools

JERSEY CITY — A suggestion that Catholic college graduates might consider a limited period of service as teachers in the Catholic schools to help meet the obvious teaching shortage was made June 5 by an authority on Catholic education.

Rev. Neil G. McCluskey, S.J., education editor of the Jesuit publication America, suggested this as he addressed the graduating class of St. Peter's College at the 60th Commencement in Roosevelt Stadium.

A class of 366 received their degrees from Very Rev. James J. Shanahan, S.J., president, and 48 received commissions as second lieutenants in the U. S. Army Reserve from Major General Raymond Curtis, commanding general, II U. S. Army Corps, Lt. Col. Joseph Jaugstetter, ROTC commander at St. Peter's, administered the oath.

The valedictory address was delivered by Francis J. Flanagan.

"HOW DOES the shortage of teaching personnel involve you?" Father McCluskey asked the graduates. "In several ways. Perhaps a few of you have been planning to enter the field of teaching as a career. But perhaps there are others of you who might be responsive to the suggestion that a two-year period of service in parochial schools would be the kind of generosity which could go a long way toward alleviating our school problems."

Father McCluskey had pointed out that vocations in the teaching orders are normal but nevertheless cannot cope with the vast increases in the Catholic school population. Since the 1940s, he said, "under the impact of the baby boom, public school enrollment has shot up 36% but the enrollment in parochial and other non-public schools has increased 147%."

He emphasized that there will always be available qualified teaching religious to "give a solid religious spirit to our schools."

"It need hardly be stated, though," he said, "that dedicated personalities, academic preparation, classroom competence, even religious influence itself, can be as much the possession of lay teachers as of religious teachers."

THE FOLLOWING senior awards were presented also by Father Shanahan:

James J. McGee, Hanlon Medal for highest four-year average, bachelor of arts, Farmer Medal for senior theology; and Fallon Medal for highest four-year average in theology; Francis J. Flanagan, Smith Medal for highest four-year average, natural science course; Francis J. Jandrowitz, Hart Medal, highest four-year average in social science; Paul C. ## MISERABLE AND CRUDE

In the bamboo hut now being used as a Chapel at the new Mission Station of KARTIKULAM in INDIA. The Bishop writes that "it would serve to increase the faith of those born and raised as Catholics, preserve the fervor of the newly-converted, attract non-Catholics to the faith, if this Mission Station had a decent house wherein to worship God." To erect a building that would be a fitting Chapel would cost $2,000. The people of KARTIKULAM live a hand-to-mouth existence with food taken from the land itself; they have no money to build a Chapel. Should you be able to assist in building this Chapel you would be helping to preserve and increase the faith in those who already have it, and attract to the faith those who do not have it.

If you choose to remember your Father in one of the above ways, and he is living, we will send him a Gift Card telling him of your gift.

In the Orator at Mass on Corpus Christi we pray, "O God, who in this wonderful sacrament has left us a memorial of thy passion: grant us, we beseech thee, so to reverence the mysteries of thy Body and Blood, that we may ever feel within us the fruit of thy redemption."

VARGHESE MAVELITHUVIL of INDIA and CHEFLEMARIAN VADEGA of ETHIOPIA are two seminarians who are now preparing for the great day when they will be given the power to bring Christ down on the altars of their native lands. Their life's work will be to instill in those under their charge that reverence for the mysteries of Christ's Body and Blood which will bring Redemption; through the power of their priesthood they will be able to give to the faithful the Corpus Christi, the Body of Christ. SISTER DOMINIC MARIE and SISTER CAMILLUS are two novices of the MEDICAL MISSION SISTERS in INDIA. The daily reception of Christ's Body and Blood is giving these two girls the strength to persevere in the novitiate; after they become Professed Sisters, and are assigned to a Mission Hospital, it will be their daily Holy Communion that will give them continuing strength to serve God as nursing nuns.

Through priests the Body of Christ is kept on our altars; by priests, brothers, and sisters, we are taught, by word and example, a love for the Holy Eucharist which will bring Redemption. To educate a boy for the priesthood costs $600; to educate a girl for the Sisterhood costs $300. Can you help?

Visions and Shades

Three-hundred-year-old Jersey City received signal honor last week in suburban South Orange. The waterfront city thrilled to commencement-day plaudits on tree-dotted Seton Hall campus. The occasion was the graduation of the charter class of New Jersey's first Medical and Dental School. The sprawling city and the venerable university were especially akin for that one day, because the Jersey City Medical Center had been the scene of the studies and training of this pioneer class for the past four years.

When a milestone has been successfully reached and passed, there's only one feeling — profound satisfaction. As the university president, Msgr. Dougherty, remarked last Saturday: "Lasting achievements are not bought at a petty price; they are not wrought by shortsighted men whose vision is darkened by bias, prejudice and self-interest. They are wrought rather by men who vision America as a free land in which there are no second-class citizens, in which there is a place for private enterprise in education as well as in business."

Any fledgling enterprise flies on timid wings in its initial stages. The medical school, however, received an ungracious welcome from surprising sources in Catholic Jersey City, from "dis-senters who see shades when they should behold visions."

From 1956, until this first class stepped forward for the conferring of degrees, divers tirades, accusations and law suits have plagued the city, the university, the faculty and the students. As the mayor himself remarked: "There is an almost complete ignorance of what the presence of Seton Hall College of Medicine and Dentistry will mean in the area of medical care for the patient."

The university has invested $5.5 million to get this unique project off the ground; the annual school budget amounts to about $2 million; the school has taken over vacant, deteriorating buildings (which others were not interested in renting), and conditioned them for use — these are hard financial facts, but the blind blithely ignore them.

Msgr. Dougherty significantly pointed out that the Medical Center has many indigent patients in clinics and wards and as outpatients; the school serves these patients under the guidance of distinguished faculty professors. The corporal works of mercy cannot be measured in terms of dollars.

It's true that the medical school needs the hospital — but, by the same token, the hospital, the city needs the medical school. The Ford Foundation and other organizations have already recognized its merit by generous grants to further research and medical progress. The contribution of the university in dollars and in daring to inaugurate this bold venture is an inestimable endowment of the civic and social welfare of the community.

Jersey City taxpayers subsidizing the Seton Hall Medical School? Rather, the school is subsidizing the city "through the presence of a community of scholars that bolsters its prestige, through the presence of hundreds of students who indirectly foster a program of urban renewal, through a school that aids the hospital to maintain its standing and provide adequate medical care to the citizens."

That graduation was probably the most significant event at this stage of the city's three-century history. The investment of the Church in money and talent in the Medical-Dental College shows emphatically that she has not lost confidence in the future greatness of the city.

The Lurking Danger

Conscience Informs Man Of Laws Implanted by God

By Frank J. Sheed

The moral laws being of that importance to man, how does he know what they are? In two ways principally — by the witness of his nature, and by the teaching of men entitled to speak in the name of God.

Take nature first. God, making creatures, built the laws of their being into them. The maker of an automobile does much the same: he builds his machine to run with water in the radiator, with gasoline in the tank, with a proper order in the gears; that way it will function.

God makes our bodies, with lungs that need air and with a complex mechanism to ensure that they get it, with a need for certain kinds of food, and so on. By powers, and by felt needs that will cause us to exercise the powers, God builds His laws into our body; in obedience to them, the body is in health.

IN THE SAME way, God builds His laws into our souls, too. The laws of justice and purity and worship are as real for the soul as the laws of diet for the body. In obedience to them, the soul is in health.

If we disobey the laws for the running of the automobile, the engine makes strange noises and at last comes to a stop. If we disobey the laws of the body, we have pain, and ultimately death.

The stirring of conscience in the soul is like the strange noises in the engine and the pain in the body. It is a protest against misuse. It is the soul's way of indicating that the laws according to which its Maker built it are being ignored, that it is not being run as its Maker built it to be run.

This pain in the soul is unlike any other — it is an intense awareness that we ought not to be acting as we are, that a particular action is not merely damaging us but is wrong. Even if the action is apparently pleasurable and profitable — there is this inner protest to spoil the pleasure and make the profit questionable.

THIS INNER protest is not by itself a sufficient guide; we are no longer as God made us; the generations have introduced distortions at this point or that, habits and ideas have taken root and grown into a second nature, silencing nature's first utterance. For any given man or society, the inner witness sounds surely on most matters; but there are those on which it does not sound. For certainty, we need the statement of God's appointed teachers.

Conscience is the practical moral judgment of the intellect, the intellect's judgment upon the rightness and wrongness of our own actions. The intellect makes its judgment according to God's law known to it in one or the other of the two ways we have been discussing.

As only God can tell us with certainty the laws by which we should live, so only God can tell us with certainty the purpose of our life. We cannot use anything intelligently till we know what it is for. Men apply the rule as a matter of course to everything — to everything, that is, except one thing. Themselves. Yet, it is no less clear about man himself than about all other things. We cannot intelligently handle our own lives, or influence the lives of others, unless we know what man is for.

THERE IS NO space to develop this idea here: but please reflect on it. Unless we know the goal man is meant to reach, we cannot direct our own life toward it or help others to reach it. To walk the road of life, not knowing where it leads, is mere blindness.

Our Maker has told us what He made us for — to come to the fullest development of our own powers in total union with Him. Let us take a first look at this.

Moscow Is Creating Legends for History

By Louis F. Budenz

In viewing Moscow's post-summit performance, we must bear in mind one major consideration. Both history in the making and history in the recording have a tincture of legend intermingled with the substance of actual happenings.

On such a small matter as whether Elizabeth I of England was bald after 30 years of age, there is a hot controversy down to the present day.

The great Pope Innocent III, in the early 13th century, was a man most scrupulous in money matters, but he had the misfortune to have as a political opponent Walter von der Vogelweide, the greatest of the Minnesingers. That gentleman distributed far and wide by way of popular song the accusation that the Pope was given over to bribery and corruption.

KNOWING THIS tendency in history, the Kremlin has set out systematically to make itself the legend-creator of today. And so, if it does not get its own way with any conference with the West, it lays the ground in advance (as it did recently) for blaming its opponents by labeling them all "imperialist aggressors." Thus also it forwards throughout the world that which makes its Communist Parties so potent — the legend that if the communists are curbed, all others will suffer.

The try that is to be made after the summit wreckage, to drive into our national consciousness this latter allegation, is laid before the comrades in the May Political Affairs. There the leading directive article from Moscow is titled "The Struggle for the Defense of Democracy in Bourgeois Countries."

Its great authority is necessarily Nikita S. Khrushchev in his report to the 21st Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union. Its theme is that any curbing of the communists constitutes fascism. We can therefore expect the comrades and their friends to endeavor to frighten the American people to the point of abolishing all Congressional committees and of still further hampering the already-shattered FBI.

WHAT THE communists are now to do with this expanding liberty for subversion is told by Man's highest powers are intellect, by which he knows, and will, by which he loves (and, according to his love, chooses). The object of the intellect is truth, of the will goodness. Our intellect is to come to the fullest knowledge of the supreme truth — which is God. Our will is to come to the fullest love of the supreme goodness — which is God.

In knowing and loving God we shall achieve the purpose for which God made us. So much we might have guessed without any revelation from God. What we could never have suspected, without His telling, is what the knowing and loving are to be.

Migrant Labor Bill A Blow to Laborers

By Msgr. George G. Higgins
Director, Social Action Department, NCWC

On May 23 the House Committee on Agriculture submitted a report favoring the enactment of a bill (H.R. 12176) which would: (a) extend authorization of the Mexican farm labor program, without amendments, until June 30, 1963; and (b) make it illegal for the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations governing the interstate recruitment of migratory workers through the U. S. Employment Service.

Several times I have argued in detail against the first proposal. I should now like to discuss the second proposal.

IT WILL BE necessary to summarize events leading up to the attempt by sponsors of H.R. 12176 to prevent the Secretary of Labor from issuing regulations affecting migratory workers recruited through the U. S. Employment Service.

In 1933, Congress passed the so-called Wagner-Peyser Act, which provided a grant-in-aid program for creation of state employment services and created a federal agency to coordinate their programs. The Secretary of Labor was authorized to make such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of the act.

The Secretary, in administering the act, has issued minimal regulations affecting the wages, hours, and working conditions of migratory workers. His right to do so has been bitterly contested by a number of organizations representing influential growers.

SEVERAL MONTHS ago, when improved regulations were being considered, these organizations used every conceivable kind of pressure against the Secretary of Labor. The Secretary held his ground and received a ruling from the Attorney General which said that he had the authority to issue the regulations.

The growers then persuaded friends in Congress to introduce H.R. 12176, which would get around the ruling by "clarifying" the intent of the Wagner-Peyser Act.

The House Agriculture Committee was not completely frank about this matter in its favorable report on H.R. 12176. It didn't even discuss the merits of the Secretary's regulations. Rather it concentrated on the narrow constitutional question of whether the Secretary has the authority to issue regulations.

"The committee feels," we are told, "that the issue involved is not the motives behind or reasonableness of the regulations issued by the Secretary of Labor. The basic issue is whether, within the framework of our constitutional form of government, it is for the Congress or for the executive branch to legislate in this important area of the law."

"Whatever anyone may believe the Congress should do in this connection, the inescapable fact is that the Congress has not done so; and until Congress chooses to do so by specific Congressional enactment, it is a violation of sound governmental practice for an executive agency to proceed without such specific mandate."

THIS IS A sad example of straining out gnats while swallowing a camel. The basic issue is not whether the Secretary of Labor violated the Constitution in issuing his regulations. Rather it is whether or not the facilities of the Employment Service should be used to lower the already substantial condition of migratory agricultural workers.

Given the political influence of the American Farm Bureau Federation and other organizations representing influential growers, I can understand the reluctance of the House Agriculture Committee to cooperate with the Secretary of Labor in protecting migrant workers but I certainly don't admire it.

I do, however, admire the courage of three committee members — Congressmen Merwin Coad, Lester R. Johnson and George McGovern — who broke with the majority and issued a minority report. Their discussion of moral issues and principles of national policy leaves little to be desired.

Responsible TV Programming

Television is a highly competitive medium because of its tie-up with commercial interests. Trade is competitive and television programming which advertises it imitates its sponsor. As traders compete for markets, TV programs compete for audiences. What time, thought, energy and ingenuity are put into commercial advertising on TV? Compare this with the time, thought, energy and ingenuity that does not go into considerations of the moral, sociological, and cultural problems related to such a universal medium.

These problems are not easily solved, but they will never be solved if serious study is not given them by producing and programming agencies and the large corporations that buy their packages. Profit cannot continue to be the potent force it now is in determining the content of television programs. Popularity cannot be the dominant criterion of programming without consideration of the objective character of the program. Such a criterion attributes to mass audiences of all ages and conditions powers of discretion and judgment they simply do not have.

Other factors come into play. It is possible that a program that enjoys great popularity may be offensive to a certain ethnic or religious group. A case in point is the popular program called "The Untouchables." The program is offensive to the Italian people because hoods and gangsters are predominantly identifiable as Italians by their names or type-casting. The producer may argue that the program is based upon facts in a certain city in a certain period of American history. The historical fact no one can deny, but the case is not thereby closed. The problem concerns the presentation of the historical facts in the context and character of this program and the implications drawn by audiences about the Italian people as a group by reason of the sustained emphasis in a long series of programs.

If we take any phase of American history and portray it week after week in absorbing television programs, that phase of history assumes a false proportion. In fairness then to the Italian people, there should be programs that counterbalance "The Untouchables" by portraying their contribution to American life in law, medicine, music, scientific invention and the rest. We are not suggesting that such programming is practicable, but trying to bring out the fact that programming must be weighed in the overall picture of the impression it creates and possible injury to a given group.

Sign of the Times

It seems incredible to find a great newspaper beginning to protest the very dramatic productions and films which it advertises day after day with shocking sensationalism. This is a good sign but it is also a frightening one. Such protests must mean that the fare offered on the stage and the screen must be very strong indeed to bring objections from the very newspapers which have upheld the right of the producer against the welfare of the individual and society.

The condemnation is startling and at the same time it is accurate. In a feature article, a well-known author describes the depths to which the stage in New York has fallen. In particular, she remarks upon the corrupt and perverted women who are the central figures of a great majority of the current plays. From "Sweet Bird of Youth," through "Duel of Angels" to "Toys in the Attic," a series of narcotized, introverted, sexually psychopathic women write before nightly audiences. The men are scarcely different. The true tragedy of this dramatic decadence is revealed in the rather obvious enjoyment of the spectators. (It seems better to call these audiences "spectators" with all that implies of arena galleries.) Men and especially women compete for tickets for these plays and once inside obviously enjoy the presentation of moral cancer night after night. One begins to wonder, with the protesting author, if this callous audience reaction is the end product of the increasingly vulgar and immoral contemporary theater.

At the same time, Bosley Crowther, known for his insistence on complete freedom for the producer and the viewer alike, has begun to express concern for the motion pictures being made abroad and flooding our so-called "art theaters." With engaging candor he is willing to admit that the coyly titled "art film" can really be used to designate a commercial development rather than an artistic one. He notes with perception that at the great film festivals these films which are planned to shock are the only ones that find entry. He recognizes that for the most part only films treating of incest, lechery, rape and other aberrations are considered prize-winning possibilities. Again it is refreshing to note that Mr. Crowther not only seems a little agast at the prevalence of the corrupt and the perverted but he also begins to be shocked at the realism with which corruption and perversion are presented.

Perhaps, now that the secular press is coming to recognize the revolting in theme and presentation and, at the same time, begins to acknowledge the cultivated baseness of the modern audience, we can expect some improvement. It is truly a sign of the times when the Times begins to complain that the theater and the motion picture have gone too far.

STRANGE BUT TRUE

Little-Known Facts for Catholics

By M. J. MURRAY

More Baltimore Tuition Data

Editor: As an ex-Baltimorean, I would like to add a few words to the letter written by Nora Sullivan Wysocki, of Clifton. Not only the Irish, but all nationalities were proud to pay tuition in grammar schools, which then ranged from 25 cents a week up, according to grade, plus the cost of purchase or loan of books.

Name withheld, Arlington.

and churches, convents and rectories. The cost of running the parish school is paid for, in our parishes today, by the contributions of all the people of the parish. The parishes contribute too. Thus their payment for the education of their children is an indirect payment, and it is aided by the other members of the parish who may have no children in the school. But is this not the more Catholic way to educate our Catholic children, with everyone contributing according to his ability?

Edward Hogan, Elizabeth.

Catholics Do Too Pay for Schooling

Editor: The letter in last week's issue of The Advocate from the independent Irish woman, Mrs. Nora Sullivan Wysocki, was very interesting. But I wonder if she is overlooking the fact that parents do, in fact, pay tuition for their children in the parochial schools — just as they paid and are paying for the building of schools

Like to Help Convent in India?

Editor: The increase in the applications received from aspirants to the religious life and the imperative need for more personnel makes me appeal to the generous American people to help us complete our novitiate building, begun five years ago. Want of funds has resulted in the stopping of construction work. You will realize the great need for good religious teachers in this country. God bless you.

God Love You Pope Prays Constantly

By Bishop Fulton J. Sheen The Holy Father is in his private chapel every morning at four o'clock. From then on until eight, he is at prayer, meditation, spiritual reading and Mass. Scripture says that "he who seeks Me early will find Me."

A man of prayer relies more on the inspiration of the Holy Spirit than on the suggestions of men.

After his busy morning, when the audiences with congregations and officials and visitors are finished, there is a brief visit to the Blessed Sacrament and after lunch, a Rosary said aloud with his secretary, then Vespers and Compline.

WHEN THE AFTERNOON work is completed, another visit to the Blessed Sacrament is made and another Rosary is said aloud. After dinner, more work and study, and then another hour or more is spent in the Presence of the Blessed Sacrament, at which time a third Rosary is said.

One receives the impression of tremendous "Incarnational sanctity"; that is, of Divinity working through humanity, of God using man as an instrument of guidance and direction. Perhaps never even on the face of a mother looking into the face of her new-born babe was there ever such love, affection and paternal pride as one sees in a recent photograph of His Holiness embracing one of the Negro Bishops from Africa. A woman who brings forth a child has joy, but greater is the joy of the Vicar of Christ who has brought forth a Bishop.

Saturday, June 18 — St. Ephraem of Syria, Deacon-Confessor-Doctor. Born in Mesopotamia, he became a monk noted for his oratory and poetry. Died 378.

Form Catholic Party In Puerto Rico SAN JUAN, P. R. — A Catholic political party — the Christian Action Party — is being organized in Puerto Rico.

Organizational meetings have been held in three towns within a 25-mile radius of San Juan. Registration of party members has been in progress since the meetings. Members of the island's other political parties were among those attending the initial meetings. Some who hold offices in other parties expressed interest in the new political group, formation of which stems from defeat of a released-time bill in the House of Representatives.

Before the measure was beaten, an island-wide Catholic-sponsored rally had been scheduled in its support. Despite loss of the bill, the rally was held with 150,000 people attending. They were told by Bishop James P. Davis that the Church would have no objection to the formation of a Catholic political party but he stressed that such an organization could not be given Church backing.

Intensions for June The Holy Father's general intention for June is: That the Faithful may pray earnestly to the Holy Spirit for the reunion of all Christians in the one true Faith and Church. The mission intention suggested for the Apostleship of Prayer by the Pope is: That Catholics may help to provide spiritual as well as material aid to less developed areas.

How to Keep Balance When Family Climbs Social Ladder

By Rev. John L. Thomas, S.J. Assistant Professor of Sociology, St. Louis University We were a happy family until we moved out to this new suburb. Now my wife is not satisfied with anything. The local school isn't good enough for the kids. She's started spending a lot of money on furniture and clothes, has taken to smoking and drinking some, and has joined every club in the neighborhood. I don't mind, but now she's trying to reform me—according to her I'm not even housebroken. What should I do?

Your change of residence indicates that you have become socially mobile. Your family is moving into a higher, or at least different, social bracket. This movement is common in America because we have an open-class social system that does not restrict upward mobility, and a flourishing economic system that makes possible the increased family income required to finance the climb up the social ladder.

Since family outlooks, attitudes, and patterns of action vary considerably among the various social strata in our country, you are now engaged in making the transition from one pattern to another. You may like the old ways of doing things and seriously question whether the new are better, but sooner or later, families tend to conform to the patterns prevailing in their communities.

HOW DOES THE process work? Families tend to be very much like individuals. While we are growing up, we model and evaluate our outlooks and conduct in terms of those around us whom we admire and respect. These "patterned others" tend to set the standards and furnish the goals by which we judge our progress and development.

Family standards and goals are usually acquired in the same manner. In a given social strata, the most successful — that is, according to modern standards, the most prosperous — tend to set the goals at which other families usually aim. This accounts for a great deal of the insecurity, unrest and constant striving we find among many families, for they are aiming at goals set by the top few and are evaluating their own situation in the same terms. Since the degree of frustration we experience is measured not in terms of what we have, but in terms of what we feel we ought to have, one can understand why there can be so much frustration even among apparently well off families.

This process also explains why your movement to a new suburb has sparked a family reform campaign in your home. WHY IS YOUR wife so concerned? Well, Frank, in every society women are much more sensitive to social differences and much more conscious of prevailing family standards and goals than their husbands. This touches their domain, their special sphere of influence, both in regard to the home and the future of their children.

Your wife now has new pacesetters, and she's insecure and frustrated not in terms of what she has but in terms of the new ideals she has acquired. I think once you understand what has happened you will be in a better position to deal with it prudently. She is reasonable in working for some changes and expecting you to make some adjustments. Your transfer to a new community makes this imperative, since your family has now become an active unit in a different social system.

UNFORTUNATELY, your wife appears unduly concerned with making a good impression. Typical of the socially insecure in new situations, she is now over-forming.

One may also question whether she has adequately sized up the real pace-setters in the community. It takes some time to discover the "people who count" in a new neighborhood. Some elements in your wife's reform campaign suggest that she has confused superficial or incidental traits with real qualities.

Your position should be firm but not inflexible. Study the stable, happy families in your neighborhood and take them as your "pace-setters." If any changes are to be made, show your wife that while you are willing to be cooperative, you're not going to model your family life blindly on others.

One of the tragedies of your situation is that some socially mobile persons become so "concerned with imitating others they don't have time to enjoy the blessings they already have."

Project Charity Overseas By Sharing Your Wealth

Some persons have the ability to contribute a hundred times the amount of others. Their large sum goes to supplement the deficiency of the poor, that there may be some vestige of equality. It would not be easy to equalize the food on your table so that the hungry in India or in Africa might share your dinner. But money is the thing by which human charity can project itself into another land.

That money becomes a blessing when it passes through the hands of the Holy Father, who knows a thousand times better than you do the particular needs of the missions. He best knows where it will most establish that equality which charity desires.

Send your sacrifices to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith. They will be dispensed by the Vicar of Christ among those missions and missionaries in the greatest need.

grounds that they had encouraged the daughter of a southern tribal chief to enter a convent against her father's wishes. The expulsion brought to seven the number of these missionaries ousted from the Sudan last year.

The 18-year-old daughter of a Dinka chief had twice run away from home in hopes of becoming a nun. The family brought her home both times as they wanted her to marry. Under local custom the "bride price" could have brought them as much as 10 head of cattle.

Old Age Funds Given to Missions

The following is an example of how one person has transferred treasures to heaven:

"The check for $2,500 which I am sending to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith represents part of the money saved for my old age. Since October I have had cobalt and radioactive gold treatments for a recurrence of a malignancy of seven years ago. I am grateful that my life was spared at the time, enabling me to look after my dear mother until her death six years ago.

Obituary

It is a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead that they may be loosed from their sins. We recommend to the prayers of our readers the repose of the soul of the following who has recently departed this life:

Faculty Activity, Student Charity Feature Life at the Seminary

DARLINGTON — "A seminary exists for one purpose and one purpose only: to train young men to be priests," Msgr. Joseph H. Brady said here.

Msgr. Brady, rector of Immaculate Conception Seminary, was commenting on the release of the seminary's annual report.

The training of priests, he said, "is not as simple or as easy as it sounds; each candidate must be molded into the likeness of Christ, so that he is 'another Christ,' so that men, seeing and hearing him, will see and hear Christ."

"This," he added, "calls for a profound spiritual development and for a deep intellectual training in the sacred sciences. It is small wonder, then, that the training in the major seminary lasts for six years."

All the activities at a seminary are designed and directed toward the effective achievement of that high goal. Some contribute directly, others do so less immediately, he explained.

SOME OF THE latter type are regularly portrayed in the rector's annual report to the seminary Board of Deputies.

The Board of Deputies, headed by Archbishop Boland and including four priests of the Archdiocese, is the supreme governing body of the seminary. The board meets at least once each year to examine the condition of the seminary, to approve its operating budget and to take whatever other steps may be necessary to assure the realization of its high purpose.

At the regular meeting in May, Msgr. Brady presented his report. Some features are of general interest because they reveal aspects of seminary activity with which Catholics may not be familiar.

FOR EXAMPLE, the prime function of a seminary faculty is to teach. Yet the seminary priests do far more than fulfill this basic responsibility. Of the Darlington faculty during 1959-1960, for instance, Msgr. Brady was able to report the appointment of Msgr. John J. Dougherty to the presidency of Seton Hall University. Prior to leaving the seminary, Msgr. Dougherty had published, in October, 1959, "Searching the competence for their great responsibility in the training of future priests. Rev. John H. Koenig, professor of liturgy, is taking summer courses in that subject at Notre Dame University. Rev. Leo O. Farley is about to complete his studies in the field of moral theology at Catholic University. Rev. Carl D. Hinrichsen has finished his third year of the study of American Church history at the same university.

Rev. Stanley J. Adamczyk is nearing the end of his work for the doctorate in classical languages at Fordham University. Rev. Robert E. Hunt and Rev. Russell G. Ruffino have been studying for doctorates at the Gregorian University in Rome, the former in the field of dogmatic theology, the latter in philosophy.

The seminarians at Darlington are encouraged to broaden their intellectual interests as much as their time and talent will allow. The result of this philosophy was seen, for example, in the awarding of the degree of Bachelor of Sacred Theology to three of the students at the Catholic University commencement on June 5.

Commendable entries were submitted in a local writing contest and in a national Church history competition sponsored by St. Meinrad's Abbey in Indiana. Among the year's lecturers were: Rev. Leopold A. Braun, A.A., Catholic chaplain in Moscow for many years; Msgr. Joseph P. Christopher, formerly of the Darlington faculty, now at Catholic University; Rev. Gordon Albion, noted British radio priest and lecturer.

SIX MEMBERS of the seminary faculty are pursuing advanced studies to improve their

Maryknollers Go to Missions

MARYKNOLL, N.Y.—Two former residents of the Archdiocese of Newark, Maryknoll priests, have been assigned to foreign missions.

Rev. John D. McGuire, M.M., has been assigned to Africa. He is the son of Mrs. David McGuire, 167A Bowers St., Jersey City.

Rev. Laurence T. Murphy, M.M., is slated for the Maryknoll missions in the Philippines. He is the son of Mrs. Helen Murphy, 334 Stockton Road, Union. Both priests will take part in the departure ceremony here on June 12.

Refuse to Lift Ban On Sunday Sales

NEWARK — In two rulings here, Federal Court refused to grant an injunction against enforcement of the state's county-option Sunday sales law and refused to dismiss the suits against the law.

It was the second time in six months the court had ruled on an injunction request brought by the same parties.

Plaintiffs are Harry Morein, a furniture dealer at 411 Hawthorne Ave., Newark, and Dave and David Fass, brothers-in-law who conduct the New Jersey Floor Covering Co. at 6100 Bergenline Ave., West New York.

Orthodox Jews, they claim they close their stores on Saturdays because of their religious beliefs. Since the items they deal in may not be sold on Sundays in Essex and Hudson Counties, they are forced to close on Sundays also and they claim this is an abridgement of their religious rights under the U. S. Constitution.

THE THREE-JUDGE court voted 2-1 against the request for a temporary injunction while their suit is being contested. The same court divided in the same manner on the initial request six months ago. However, the court was unanimous in refusing a motion by the defendants to dismiss the case.

While refusing to dismiss the case the court postponed, as it had in the earlier decision, further proceedings.

The court indicated that the plaintiffs would have to wait until the U. S. Supreme Court has ruled on the Sunday sales question, as it will do in the Fall when it hears arguments against Sunday business bans in the states of Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

IT ALSO SAID proceedings would be delayed until the New Jersey Supreme Court has had an opportunity to clarify the views expressed in its April decision upholding the law, and until it can consider an appeal from a conviction under the law.

Two Guys From Harrison and Channel Lumber Co. have asked the State Supreme Court for the rehearing, contending the court's views on the religious question and the legality of classifications under the law are not clear.

The appeal from a conviction is now in Hudson County Court. It was brought by the Fasses, who were fined $25 in Magistrates Court in West New York. Once the county court has given its decision additional appeals could be brought before the Superior Court and then the State Supreme Court.

Fr. Alger, O.P., To Celebrate Jubilee June 11

During his religious life he served in Jersey City and for the past three years has been chaplain at All Souls Hospital, Morristown. Immediately previous he was assigned to St. Antoninus Priory, Newark.

When you choose a bank...
Remember: where there's HISTORY
there's stability!

National State's history goes back 148 years to a day in June when a group of Newark businessmen and civic leaders opened this bank to "encourage commerce and industry" in Essex County.

Today, the bank's 22 conveniently-located offices, and its ample resources of money and manpower assure that there is no banking service too large or too small for it to perform in the interest of economic growth.

Setonia's Medical-Dental Graduation Is N. J.'s First

GREAT DAY: Members of the first graduating class of Seton Hall College of Medicine and Dentistry walk in procession to St. Aloysius Church, Jersey City, where they began their commencement day, June 4, with a Baccalaureate Mass. Archbishop Boland celebrated the Mass and Auxiliary Bishop Curtis preached.

HISTORY IS MADE: Msgr. John J. Dougherty, president of Seton Hall, and Archbishop Boland, president of its board of trustees, exchange greetings with Dominic J. Acerra, M.D., and Rosemary Gellene, D.D.S., members of the first graduating class of Seton Hall's College of Medicine and Dentistry. The college was founded in the Jersey City Medical Center four years ago by the late Msgr. John L. McNulty. It is New Jersey's first and only medical-dental college, and Saturday's graduates are the first to receive degrees in medicine and dentistry in the state. Msgr. Dougherty gave the commencement address. (Story on Page 18).

FIRST DEGREE: Archbishop Boland confers the first medical degree ever granted in the state of New Jersey on Dominic J. Acerra of Red Bank. Ihor Baczynski of Jersey City was the first to receive the degree of doctor of dental surgery. The Archbishop conferred medical degrees on 71 and dental degrees on 36 men and women who comprise the charter class of the college.

THE OATH: A solemn highlight of the commencement in the Seton Hall gymnasium-auditorium, South Orange, was the taking of the ancient Hippocratic Oath by the candidates for medical degrees (above). Dr. Hugh G. Grady, acting dean of the medical college, administered the oath, and Dr. Merritte, dean of the dental college, administered the Pledge of Dentistry to the dental class.

Addie Gives Last Call For Young Advocates!

By June Dwyer

We're right down to the wire again with our contest. The Past and Future date is set for June 15 when the mailman brings in the last bundle of mail. That means Young Advocate Club mailing day is right around the corner if you want to get in on the fun, the prizes and the thrill of winning.

The contest rules are on this page in a box. There is room for you to write in your name, address, city, school, grade and teacher. We also want to know if you are a member or not. If you are not, your entry will make you a Young Advocate Clubber and we will get a membership card to you as soon as Addie can get it in the mail.

WHEN WE HAD this type contest last year we had a wonderful response. The older boys and girls from the fifth through the eighth grades wrote beautiful speeches for graduation. We ran the three winners to try and tell the graduates just what their classmates were thinking about.

The younger boys and girls from the kindergarten through the eighth grades did quite a job on their heroes too. It was so interesting that when the contest was over we listed all of those who were mentioned as heroes. We won't tell you what hero topped the list; that might be too much of a clue.

SOMETIMES we are asked what the judges look for when they are judging our contests. The most important thing is sincerity. If you say what you really feel, it is sure to ring a bell with the reader.

Next on the list, the judges tell us, is neatness. An untidy entry usually means that the boy or girl didn't take too much time in preparing it for us.

The words should form sentences and should be spelled correctly. This means that it might be a good idea to have your teacher or someone older read your work for you before you mail it.

Last on our list as aids for winning our contest would be writing clearly. That means on your entry blank too. Believe it or not, sometimes we have to throw a winner out because we can't read the name and address or because there isn't any name on the entry at all.

THERE THEY ARE, Young Advocates, some hints on how to make your entry better. The facts are true; they come right from the judges' mouths.

We will be looking forward to hearing from you this week with the Past and Future contest. Remember, it closes June 15. Remember too that the boys have a chance for the month at camp being offered by the CYO. That contest, also on this page, closes June 24. Happy writing!

With North Jersey Women

June's Farewell

By June Dwyer

Early June produces the bud of summer but the autumn of women's activities also comes as busy housewives and working girls prepare for a few months' rest.

Still Ahead

A Communion breakfast is still coming up for the parish women's council of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, Wayne.

The breakfast will be held June 12 in the parish hall following 9 a.m. Mass in the Church. Mrs. Ernest P. Tibbitts of Montclair, immediate past president of the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women, will speak. Mrs. Gerald J. McKenna is chairman with Mrs. Joseph A. Knaus, president, giving the welcome.

St. Joseph's Guild for the Blind will hold a card party Sept. 26 at the Canton Tea Garden, Jersey City. Mrs. Edward Connell is chairman, assisted by Mrs. John Sullivan. Proceeds will be used for St. Joseph's Home for the Blind, Jersey City. . . . Rosarians of St. Mary's, Nutley, will hold a summer social June 13 in the gym following the 8 p.m. novena. Mrs. Carmine Gianella is chairman, assisted by Mrs. Georgia Derbyshire, Mrs. Arthur Mohan and Mrs. John Matus.

Here 'n' There

Court Bernadette, CDA, installed Mrs. James Keenan as grand regent recently. She will be assisted by Mrs. Edward Connors, Alice Powles, Mrs. Patrick Perella, Mrs. Raymond Fahy, Mrs. Anthony Spina, Mrs. Phillip Spina, Mrs. James Flynn, Mrs. J. E. Finley and Mrs. Charles Brady. . . . Seventy-five attended the recent Communion breakfast of Court

Our Lady of Mt. Carmel, CDA.

Mrs. William T. Henderson, South Orange, has been elected and installed as president of the Bayley-Seton League of Seton Hall University. Other new officers are Mrs. James Stanziale, Orange, and Mrs. Theodore J. Langan, South Orange.

Over 125 Rosarians of Sacred Heart, Lyndhurst, were on hand recently to see Mrs. Angelo D. Checki, retiring president present a $600 check to Msgr. Bernard F. Moore, pastor. New officers are: Mrs. Salvatore Bufis, president; Mrs. Frederick Blum, Mrs. Louis Sottovia, Mrs. Charles Olivio and Mrs. Peter DeLuise.

COMMENCEMENT DAY: It was an occasion for broad smiles at St. Elizabeth's College, Convent, June 1, when 93 women received degrees. Talking it over were, left to right: Sister Hildegard Marie, college president; Msgr. John J. ## St. E's Graduates Nine With Honors CONVENT — Ninety-three graduates of the College of St. Elizabeth were told they were entering "the larger world of experience" at their commencement day June 1. Msgr. John J. Dougherty, the speaker, also told the women that their "education is a preparation for that experience; it is not a substitute for it."

He continued: "The graduate cannot control the experience but only the interpretation of experience. This interpretation must be fashioned by Christian principles, the very heart of Catholic education."

Bishop McNulty presided at the 58th annual graduation exercises at which 68 A.B. and 25 B.S. degrees were granted.

NINE GRADUATES received honors for their scholastic achievement: Barbara Bari, Vineland; Camille Della Volpe, North Arlington; and Judith Regan, Norwalk, Conn., were graduated summa cum laude.

'Try Me and See'

By Msgr. William F. Furlong

Almost 15 years ago Rev. M. DeWitt Safford, a minister in Santa Ana, Calif., placed $100 in the bank there and frequently publicized the fact that anyone could have the money if they could prove that God had not kept the promise He made in the Bible's Book of Malachias, "Do but carry your tithe into the tithe-barn, for my temple's needs, and see if I do not open the windows of heaven for you, (and) rain down blessing to your hearts' content!" (Mal. III:10). By a tithe is meant one-tenth of a person's earnings.

According to the last newspaper report, the $100 was still in the Santa Ana bank. And, of course, we are not surprised. No one could ever prove that; after giving God something, He had not given back abundantly more in return.

A Solution

The Church's vocation problem would be solved to a great extent if all our young people would learn that lesson well. Many decide not to become priests or Brothers or Sisters, because they think it means giving up too much. It is true they would have to give up something, but it would not be "too much."

In fact, they would find it to be a strange kind of "giving up." They would find it strange because they would get 100% more than they gave. It is like "sacrificing" a dollar, knowing that you will receive $100 in return. Our Lord promised that "everyone who has left house, or brothers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands for My name's sake, shall receive a hundredfold, and shall possess life everlasting" (Matthew XIX:29). Note, they "shall receive a hundred-fold" in return.

A Challenge

When God promised to reward abundantly all who would give to His temple one-tenth of their earnings, He said, "Try Me and see" (Mal. III:10). To those whom He has called to the priesthood or religious life; to those to whom He has promised a "hundredfold," He is saying again, "Try Me and see." Every priest, every Brother and every Sister will tell them that they will not be disappointed.

Real Appreciation

If the young men called to the priesthood could understand and appreciate the Mass as St. John Chrysostom did, they would not hesitate a moment to become priests. Even though dying, St. John arose; put on his vestments, and offered Mass. And hardly had he finished when he died. The last words he uttered — words of eternal thanksgiving — were, "Glory be to God for everything." And most of his "everything" was the privilege he had of offering Holy Mass.

St. Alphonsus Liguori Said:

"A religious will save more souls in one year by his prayers, labors and mortifications, than he will in his whole life out of religion."

Msgr. Dougherty Cites Need Of Hospital for Medical School

SOUTH ORANGE — "The hospital today needs the medical school and the medical school needs the hospital. This is no longer a matter of choice but of necessity, if a large hospital is to maintain its standing and provide medical care to the community." This about summed up the address given June 4 by Msgr. John J. Dougherty, president of Seton Hall University, at the first commencement exercises of the Seton Hall College of Medicine and Dentistry.

The charter graduating class was composed of 71 medical students and 33 dental students. Their degrees were presented to them by Archbishop Boland, president of the board of trustees of the medical-dental school. (Photos on page 11).

A significant part of the ceremonies was the awarding of medals posthumously to the late Msgr. John L. McNulty, founder of the medical-dental college who died last May, and the late Dr. Charles L. Brown, first dean of the College of Medicine, who died last December.

"OUR STATE," said Msgr. Dougherty, "waited 200 years for a medical school. Many factors contributed to this long delay, but the fact makes us realize that the undertaking is arduous. Many of the difficulties we have encountered are not unique, but rather the common experience of those who have undertaken such enterprises."

Some of our difficulties have been unique because of special conditions. We realize that general acceptance of this project does not come easily. Time is required to educate the community in the advantages of a college of medicine and dentistry," he continued.

Msgr. Dougherty pointed out that Americans enjoy the aid of the healing professions to the greatest degree in the world. This state, however, did not just happen. It is due, he said, to the "restless efforts of dedicated doctors" and also to the generosity of "enlightened business men who brought their wealth to the task of improving medical education in the country."

"Too few realize the enormous expenses involved in establishing a medical and dental school. Seton Hall has put $5.5 million into the establishment of this College of Medicine and Dentistry, and the end is not yet in sight. The annual budget of a school of this size runs about $2 million."

"Is not such a commitment a contribution to the welfare of the community and the health of its citizens? Is not the enlightened citizen forced to admit that this is a real service to the city and to the state?"

With the continuing, almost relentless advance of medical science, it is essential that hospitals have a teaching program, Msgr. Dougherty said.

"THE IDEAL situation is for a hospital to be associated with a medical school. The medical school serves the hospital and the hospital serves the school. Large city hospitals, such as the Medical Center, have many indigent patients in clinics, wards, or as out-patients. Students under the guidance of professors may learn from observation and treatment of these patients."

"The prestige of the hospital is increased by the distinguished professors of the faculty, and in time, by significant advances through research projects." Once, the community has realized the fact that affiliation of a large city hospital with a medical school is highly desirable if not essential, what should the latter institution be — public or private? asked Msgr. Dougherty.

"The state-supported schools have the advantage in that they are tax-supported. The private schools have the advantage of a greater freedom in the selection of students."

"It is my conviction and the conviction of many that it is a healthy educational situation to have thriving private medical and dental schools."

"The achievement of this first commencement was made possible not by many, but by a few, Msgr. Dougherty said in his opening remarks. One name, that of Msgr. McNulty, he said, stands above the rest.

"THIS DAY is especially his. These charter graduates are witnesses to his faith and his courage — his faith in God and man. Not all of us are worthy of such faith. The record of the establishment of the College tells the story of his courage against overwhelming odds and in the face of disappointments that would have undone a man of less stern stuff. That stern stuff in him was forged in the fire of his love for human kind, especially weak, sick, suffering human kind."

The university president also extolled the late Dr. Brown, first dean of the College of Medicine, "humane and distinguished medical educator, man of courage and of vision and of heart, to whom, Seton Hall owes so much."

Pope Tells Africans Church Can Help Solve Problems

VATICAN CITY — Pope John XXIII, in a Vatican Radio broadcast in French to African Catholics, said the Church has a doctrine that "permits her to answer the grave problems of men."

But he stressed that the Church intervenes in human affairs only when moral and religious issues are involved and places full responsibility on civil authorities for their acts.

POPE JOHN made the point after stating that the problems of Africa remain unsolved and that the Church could contribute toward their solution. He said "every African state must insure the healthy development of its country, keeping the real responsibilities wisely in mind and above all respecting the true spiritual values that are the very soul of a people."

The Pope said that, confronted with the spectacle of populations in conflict with each other, sometimes violently so, the Church teaches the superiority of the common good over "legitimate individual interests." Moreover, he added, the Church welcomes more sacrifices being made in the economic and geographical order in favor of large unions of states.

Referring to the progress of Catholicism in Africa and the recent creation of Cardinal Rugambwa, the first Negro Prince of the Church, the Pope said this is "only a stage" and for a long time to come the African churches will need "brotherly help from the countries of ancient Christianity."

Promising that this help would be forthcoming, Pope John described Africa as "a land that is profoundly religious and blessed by God."

LATER, IN a Pentecost Sunday talk in St. Peter's Basilica, the Pope said he was very disturbed over the international situation, but said he could not "personally visit the various regions of the world" to give spiritual comfort.

In his talk, the Pope referred directly to the cold war and stressed the fact that in various regions of the world, the Church meets "grave and sorrowful difficulties."

DURING THE WEEK the Pontiff also broadcast an address to the first World Congress of Catholic Agricultural and Rural Youth in Lourdes, broadcast another message to Costa Rica, and received in audience a group of manufacturers and representatives of Catholic Relief Services-NCWC, an American agency.

Rural youth were urged to develop a complete charity for others, "placing at the service of your own brother the gift you have received from God, so that it might bear fruit to the advantage of the common good."

Referring to his own childhood on a farm in northern Italy, the Pontiff recalled what he had recently said to delegates to a Rome conference of the UN Food and Agriculture Organization:

"We saw with Our own eyes during Our youthful years — and We shall never forget it — the labors and sorrows of people who dedicate themselves to working the land. What a great work of mercy it is to contribute toward lightening their burden, to give a little more well-being to those people who provide bread for the rest of mankind."

CATHOLICS in Costa Rica were told to protect the Christian family against atheistic materialism. The Pope suggested that Costa Ricans make up for the shortage of religious personnel by "intelligent use of the means of diffusing truth, so that the 'hostile man' may find the door shut against infiltration of ideologies that might be able to split the unity of your Catholic inheritance."

Speaking of industrial progress, the Pontiff said: "As the masses on all continents awaken and technical progress overthrows ancient concepts, it is indispensable to reinforce this faith in God and in Christ, in the Church and in her mission by means of open acknowledgment of the supernatural world, by charity that pours itself out to all, and by the desire to renew society in accord with the teachings of the Gospels."

Meeting the Catholic Relief Services representatives, the Pope praised the welfare operation which is conducted by the American Bishops and reminded his listeners that whatever is given to the poor will return a hundred-fold. He called the work of CRS one of the most accurate interpretations of Christ's Gospel message of charity.

There's new excitement at Colonial Oaks!

...WE'VE JUST BUILT

NEW MODELS

In lovely, lived-in Colonial Oaks, there are now two new models to enhance the custom-built look of its gently sloping streets. A split-level and a ranch are added to the popular 2-story colonial model. Here, where over 50 families are already enjoying the pace and pleasures of suburban living, you will find a community that sparkles with life — the good life you want to live. Colonial Oaks homes are tastefully scattered to complement the terrain, each on a full ½ acre. No development look here.

Colonial Oaks at East Brunswick is in the heart of Middlesex County, just 35 minutes from Newark and 50 minutes from New York. Six famous-name shopping centers lie within the town, and the schools are considered among the most progressive in New Jersey. The Junior-Senior High School, occupies a 47-acre campus and 5 of the town's 7 elementary schools were built within the past 5 years. Yet, with all this, East Brunswick's tax rate is relatively low.

These homes, in this town, at this price, will not be available for long. So plan to see Colonial Oaks for yourself now!

Archbishop to Bless Residence For Brothers at West New York

WEST NEW YORK — The new residence of the Christian Brothers who teach at St. Joseph's High School for Boys here will be blessed and dedicated by Archbishop Boland at 3:30 p.m., June 12. The Archbishop will also preside at graduation exercises.

St. Joseph's actually has two high schools, one for boys, administered by the Christian Brothers; the other for girls, whose teachers are the Franciscan Sisters of Peekskill, N. Y. Both schools are under one roof, a magnificent building dedicated by the Archbishop on June 22, 1958. The building also houses the Cor Jesu Grammar School, one of the parish's three elementary schools.

THUS, ST. JOSEPH'S of the Palisades has five schools in all. The pastor is Rev. John P. Weigand.

Ground for the Christian Brothers' residence was broken by Archbishop Boland on June 22, 1958, the same day on which he dedicated the school building. Designed by Ricker and Axt, architects, West New York, and located directly across the street from the high school building, the new residence is of contemporary architecture, matching the latter structure. The exterior facade is treated with limestone and face brick. It features aluminum windows, and air conditioning throughout.

The structure is L-shaped, consisting of a basement and two stories, with provision for a third story should it be required in the future.

Presently the building provides living accommodations for 22 Brothers. The third story would increase this capacity to 40, and the other rooms in the building have been planned to provide for the larger number. These include chapel, community room, lounge, refectory, recreation room, visiting parlors and various utility rooms.

Have you tasted the bread that was never meant to be sold?

It's called Monks' Bread and has long been the daily bread of the Trappists of the Abbey of the Genesee, a mainstay in their austere diet.

A tall, thin loaf, different and more delicious than any you've ever tasted, this healthful bread has become popular overnight. Actually this bread was never meant to be sold. But visitors to the Abbey of the Genesee were so enthusiastic about it that the Monks agreed to share it with the outside world.

Recently the Bond Bakers were given the privilege of baking Monks' Bread for you. Monks' Bread baked by Bond, following the Trappist recipe, is now at your favorite store in White, Whole Wheat and Raisin loaves. Do try it.
